

7. Growth-Inducing Aspects of the Proposed Project

The operation of the Jewish Congregation of Brookville is not expected to induce any population growth or require any infrastructure improvements. Few new jobs would be created, and the facility is not expected to give rise to significant new secondary development. There would be similar results for the as-of-right use of two single family homes.